

SecureView Announces Expansion
Over 40 Locations in more than 20 States

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

July 22, 2014

SecureView, the country's first virtually unbreakable boarding system to resemble windows, is announcing that they have expanded their nationwide footprint. With manufacturing headquarters in Indiana and flagship offices in Chicago and Cleveland, the American made product can now be procured from over 40 locations across the United States.

"With over 40 distribution centers in more than 20 states, we are fighting blight on a nationwide scale," said Robert Klein, SecureView co-founder and chairman. "From coast to coast, SecureView is helping America eliminate plywood one board at time."

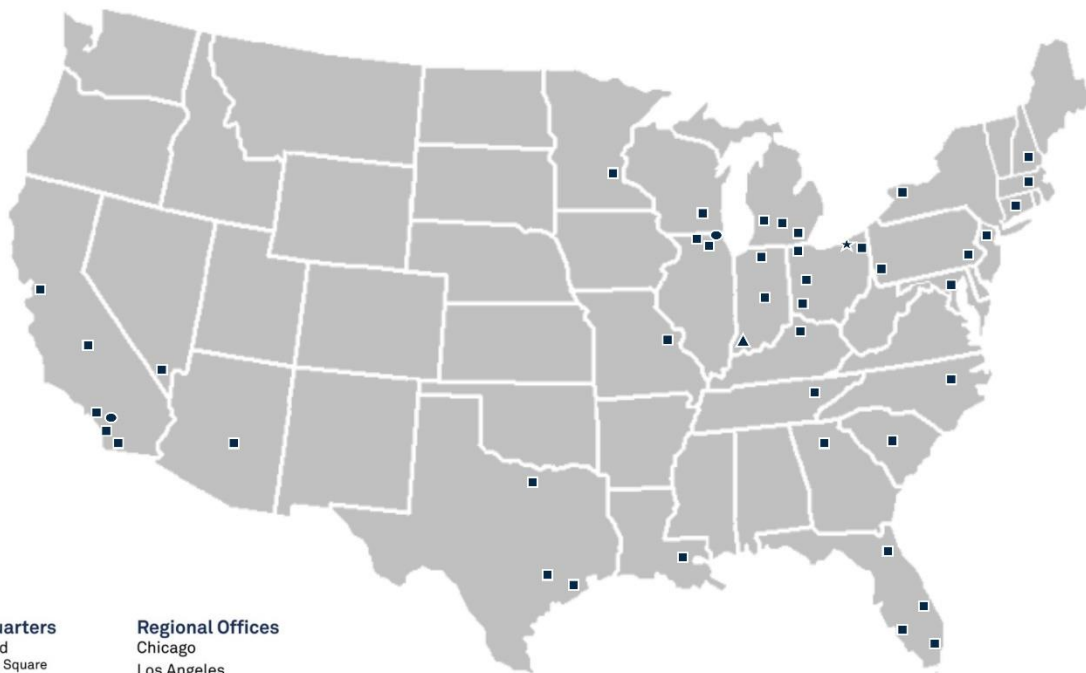

With a commitment to outstanding customer service, SecureView ensures a turnaround time that is as fast and efficient as possible. Customers may purchase products online, distribution locations cannot accept payment.

"We have developed a logistics model that enables customers to receive products in a matter of hours," said Howard Wedren, SecureView President and co-founder. "Our ability to make SecureView available to a broader audience lends itself to our focus on customer service and emphasis on seamless logistics."

About SecureView

SecureView is an alternative board-up system that is designed to look like traditional windows providing clear views and lets in natural light. Made from 100% recycled materials, it is virtually unbreakable, which means it has the wherewithal to protect property from intrusion, and reduce the crime and squatting so often associated with plywood and steel board ups.

Our Mission

To benefit both lenders and communities by increasing the marketability of a property while simultaneously fighting community blight and securing the asset long term.
